A key difference between Blackjack and Spanish 21 is that ten cards are removed from the deck in Spanish 21. In Blackjack, a pair of tens or a face card (Jack, Queen, King) and a ten card is called a "blackjack" and pays 3:2. In Spanish 21, this combination is called a "punto" and pays 2:1. The term "blackjack" is used for a prison term of 21 months (or years, if you're not careful). BT /

The name "vingts-et-un" was replaced by Blackjack early on in the 20th century. BlackJacker: David Parlett's histories of gambling. uk : hiscns ;
